The Story of the First Ladies Costume Maker

I knew that yard sales could be fun, but I never expected to find such a treasure!

One day last summer, my mom and I got up at 7:00 on a Saturday morning so we'd be the very first ones at the yard sale. We put on our special yard sale clothes—matching flowered dresses we'd bought the last time we went bargain hunting!

As soon as we arrived, there it was: an antique wardrobe, big as a friendly old bear and looking like it ought to come home with us. Really, it was as tall as a bear on her hind legs. And with all that dust on it, that wardrobe looked almost furry! "We need it," I told Mom, and at first she laughed. "Do we need it, or does it need us?" she asked. I could see what she meant: it wasn't exactly the newest-looking piece of furniture, but still, I had a special feeling about it...

As soon as we got the wardrobe home and unloaded it in my bedroom, I started work. Underneath the dirt I found the most adorable carved wood flowers. And there were so many drawers for clothes! First I scrubbed, then I used sandpaper to get out the scratches. I worked all day until dinnertime. The more I scrubbed, the more I saw: the wardrobe wasn't brown at all, but a gleaming bright gold color. It was so wonderful to see that old thing come alive again. Looking closer,

I saw some mysterious numbers carved underneath. And still I hadn't yet discovered its biggest secret.

The next day I decided to work on the inside of the wardrobe. Its last owner, it seemed, had put some silly-looking wallpaper with quacking yellow ducks all over the inside, and I carefully peeled it off. Underneath were pictures of funny old-fashioned clothes and a multi-colored spinning flower.

And that's when it first happened. I touched the flower and heard the most puzzling magical music—something high-pitched and delicate, like a harpsichord playing! Before I knew it, I was back in time, dressed like a first lady! So far, I've been to the times of Martha Washington, Mary Todd Lincoln, Eleanor Roosevelt and Jacqueline Kennedy! And in each time, I've made a really good friend. I can't wait to go back and visit them again and again!

How to Play

Choose the place in history you want to visit

The fun starts in the Wardrobe Room. Each drawer in the wardrobe takes you to a different place in history—four places in all. Just open the drawer and touch the magic time-travel spinner inside to go back in time. Plus you can customize how you look!

Mitzi the cat has been everywhere in history and knows pretty much everything. She'll come time-traveling with you to show you around. When you arrive someplace for the first time, she'll tell you what there is to do. Click your mouse to let her know that you're okay on your own, and she'll stop her tour.

Wardrobe Room (time-travel drawer open)

Click the time-travel spinner to go back in history

Explore the historical room

Click to open drawer and dress up in the clothes

Click the time-travel spinner to return to the Wardrobe Room and choose another place to explore

Click to write a letter back home or to the girl you're visiting

Click to read about women in the news

Click to read her diary and write in new entries

Click Mitzi for help

Click to quit

Click to design and decorate the clothes. You can then return to this room to dress the doll in your own designs. Plus you can print out paper dolls and the room you've colored yourself.

Of course, each historical room is unique. But in every historical period you can dress up in the clothes, design and decorate the clothes, read and write diaries, write letters, and read about a woman in the news in every room you visit. (Just keep your eyes open—the diaries, letters and news are in different places in each historical room.)

Historical Room (clothes drawer open)

Click Magic Clean to put all the clothes back in the closet. (Or you can drag them back one at a time.)

To dress, click down on a piece of clothing. Hold the mouse down to drag the clothes to the girl. Let go of the mouse when the clothes are in the right place.

Click Mitzi the cat for help. Or drag anything from the drawer over her—she knows an interesting fact about every one of them!

Design and decorate the clothes, the room, and a paper doll

Designing and Decorating Area (click on Crayon icon in Historical Room)

Make a Paper Doll!

When you print, the clothes come with tabs so you can cut them out and dress your paper doll. If you have a color printer, the clothes will print out in the colors you chose. If you have a regular printer, the clothes will be black and white, and you can color them with crayons or markers. First Ladies Costume Maker will automatically save what you did last!

Dress up in the clothes you've designed

Historical Room (after you've designed and decorated clothes)

Click the star to switch between the clothes you've designed and the original clothes

After you've designed and decorated the clothes, your designs go into the drawer. You can dress up in your own designs! (The room keeps its original colors.)

Read the Diary

Camelot 1961

October 19, 1961

Argh! Sometimes I get so mad at boys! Today was the election for Editor of the school paper. I ran against J., the guy with glasses in my math class. He—along with nearly all the boys—kept teasing me and saying, "A girl can't do that job". They said only boys can be reporters. I said, "Jackie Kennedy, the First Lady, used to be a reporter!" It's true—I saw a show about her on TV—Mrs. Kennedy was a journalist before she married President John F. Kennedy. Well that made those boys cool it for a while!

All that teasing gave me an idea for my campaign as editor: to get all the girls in class to vote for me—we're the majority in my class, anyway! So I wrote an article about girls being just as smart as

Click to return to historical room

Click for help

Click to quit

Click to page forward

Read about a special day in the life of the girl you've met back in history—you can learn what her life was like!

Make a New Day

Make your own entry in the Diary (click on the Make a New Day icon in the Diary to come here)

Your work is special, so First Ladies Costume Maker will automatically save what you did last!

Write a Letter

Letters Area (click on the Letters icon in any Historical Room to come here—the icon looks like letters from the time)

The first time you go to a letter, you'll see a letter starter idea. You can continue the letter, or you can start a new letter. Write to anyone you want—your family, a friend, or to one of the girls you've met back in history. If you have a color printer, the letters will print out in the colors you chose. If you have a regular printer, the letters will be black and white, and you can color them with crayons or markers. First Ladies Costume Maker will automatically save what you did last!

Extensions for Learning—

Activities for Kids to do with Parents, Teachers and Friends

First Ladies Costume Maker builds an interest in an understanding of history by giving them fun, kid-friendly ways to explore different time periods. But we know you want your kids to be fascinated with history, to explore history, even when they're not playing with First Ladies Costume Maker on the computer. To help make that happen, we've included a parent/teacher guide on the CD-ROM with lots of ideas to make history even more fun. There's also a text-extractor utility that works great with E-mail.

- Extensions for Learning. An activity guide with fun activity ideas to feed your child's interest in history—there's lots of arts and crafts, fun project ideas, and great book suggestions.
  - ✦ Make a costume museum with the clothes from First Ladies Costume Maker and give a tour!
  - ✦ Embroider a flag like Martha Washington!
  - ✦ Make a cameo necklace like Mary Todd Lincoln's!
  - ✦ There are lots of things to make, learn, and do.

- Text Extractor. The IBM text-extractor utility allows you to send your child's letter from the past through E-mail (if you have E-mail and an Internet connection).

- ✦ Use the tool to extract a letter your child has written, then paste it into an E-mail message.
- ✦ Show the grandparents what their grandchild wrote!
- ✦ Help her E-mail her letter to one of her friends!
- ✦ E-mail it to the IBM web site—we'd love to see what your child writes!
